WHAT YOU WILL LEARN:

- Brief Introduction to TEVA (transition from school to active life)
- How schools, TEVA, and community partners collaborate to build autonomy, life skills, and work-readiness for students with diverse needs
- What employment pathways, services, and supports exist for youth with disabilities or mental health challenges
- Practical strategies for students and families to strengthen autonomy, transition skills, and readiness for employment

Audience:

This workshop is intended for high school students who are able to participate in autonomous or semi-autonomous work or volunteer placements with some guidance. It is also open to parents, school staff, and community partners who want to learn about employment pathways, services, and supports available for youth with disabilities or mental health conditions.

This workshop is not suited for students who require full-time, one-to-one support.
